STILL UNDECIDED.

We go to press again this week without knowing who will be our next president. The canvassing of the vote in the state of New York is still going on and it will be some days yet before it will be absolutely determined who has a plurality of the votes of that state. The democratic papers claim that Cleveland has a plurality of 1,200 but that claim is based upon no facts worth discussing. The truth is that at the headquarter of the democratic national committe in New York the plurality claimed is less than 300, while the republican committee claim to have information which will entirely wipe out this figure and give Mr. Blaine several hundred plurality. The loafers who are running the democratic machine are doing an immense amount of blustering and their threats are of the most sanguinary character in case Mr. Cleveland is not declared the victor. If a complete canvass of New York gives Mr. Blaine a plurality of its votes he will be inaugurated on the 5th of next March if he lives until that day. Of course he has got to take the chance which all other republican presidents have taken, of being murdered. Of the four elected republican presidents two of them have been disposed of in that way. Therefore, we conclude Mr. Blaine has half a chance of living if elected.

At this writing (Friday morning) the republicans stand an even chance of carrying New York.

A MAGNIFICENT RESULT.

However New York may go and however the final result may be determined by the election in that state, the republicans of Pennsylvania have a right to rejoice over the splendid victory achieved by them on the 4th inst. The plurality for the Blaine electors exceeds 80,000. The three counties of Philadelphia, Allegheny and Lancaster give a little over 58,000 of this, but heretofore the majority of Philadelphia has been about the majority of the state. For many years past it has been coudered good work for the republicans to go to Philadelphia with as many votes as the democrats, and for the majority of Philadelphia to be about the majority of the party in the state. This year the republicans of the state knock at Philadelphia's door with 50,000 plurality to be added to the 30,000 given in that city. In fact the republicans of the state outside of the three great republican municipalities of Philadelphia Allegheny and Lancaster counties, roll up a republican plurality of over 22,000. The plurality of Lancaster county is not far from 10,000, of Allegheny county 18,000 and Philadelphia 30,000, and Pennsylvania is to-day the banner republican state of the union.

Some of our exchanges are asserting that there were democratic gains in a half dozen counties in Pennsylvania, one of them being McKean. So far as this county is concerned they were never further "off the belt." McKean county never polled as many republican votes as it did this year. Never in its history did it give the republican candidate for president so large a plurality, excepting in '72, when Greely was the democratic candidate, and a third of the democrats voted for Grant. In 1880 the entire vote of this county for president was 6862, on which occasion Mr. Garfield received 524 votes more than Gen. Hancock. At the late election the vote of the county was 7,640 and Mr. Blaine received 840 votes more than Cleveland. As republicans of McKean county we are somewhat proud of the record.

Hon. A. O. Furst of Bellefonte, was elected president judge of the Centre and Huntingdon judicial district at the late election. The people of that district have reason to congratulate themselves on this result. A more competent gentleman could hardly have been selected from the bar of the two counties for this responsible position.

Some people had an idea that there was but one man who could represent Cameron county in the legislature and that man was Mr. Joe Shafer. The republicans of that county, however, seemed to entertain different views on this subject, as they have just elected Mr. Barclay over Mr. Shafer by a very decisive majority. Good-bye, Joe.

THE BOURBONS JUBILANT.

The manner in which the supposed election of Cleveland is being celebrated throughout the south, shows the true spirit which actuates the bourbon democrats. Their papers are filled with head-lines of which the following is a fair sample: "Southern principles once more in the ascendency." "The adherents of Jeff Davis triumphant." Three hundred guns were fired in Norfolk, Virginia, on Friday night last, and a banner was suspended across Market Square representing "Blaine in Hell." At a meeting held in St. Louis on Saturday night last, Jeff Davis was frequently cheered, and "Dixie" the "Bonny Blue Flag," and "My Maryland," were the tunes which the bands principally played. Senator Vest said in his speech at the meeting:

"Now we make no threat. We are to-night to say to men who are attempting to doctor and to change the returns of New York State, beware, beware, or the democrats of the United States will rise and throttle the scoundrels who are plotting to rob them of their rights."

John I. Martin made a fierce speech. He congratulated the people on hurling from power the corrupt crowd, and added: "Soon will be heard the tramp, tramp of the boys in gray, and the tramp, tramp of the infamous radical crowd. Whomsoever God and the democratic party have joined together let no thieving radical put asunder."

Ex-Governor Brown, of Tennesee, was next introduced. He was loudly cheered as he advanced to the stand. Some fellow in the audience said: "How about the solid south?" Governor Brown replied, "I hear an expression regarding the solid south. Yes, the south is solid, we are solid for constitutional liberty and solid in our devotion for Cleveland and Hendricks. The flag of the south went down in war, but thank God, it did not go down in dishonor. [Cheers.] To-night we rejoice that the men who bore it have asserted their supremacy."

So it goes. The men who, twenty years ago were in arms against the government, are firm in the belief that the inauguration of Cleveland will restore them to the power which they lost when Lincoln became president in 1861. Are they miscalculating? We think not.

Gen. John Patton was beaten for congress in the 20th district by 650 votes, 2000 majority having been given Curtin in Centre county. The republicans of Centre may think they were doing the right thing to vote for Andy Curtin, but on that point they are entirely at variance with the republicans of the rest of the state. The action of the Centre county republicans had no weight in the rest of the district as Gen. Patton made a magnificent run in every other county, and hadn't the district been so overwhelmingly democratic he would have "swept the board." He received

Closed

This week closes our campaign edition We would be very glad to continue the acquaintance so happily begun with our campaign subscribers We believe no subscriber will be sorry that the Miner is a weekly visitor at his or her residence in the years to come

Not Interested.

The election table we published last week was incorrect in several particulars, but it was no one fault We copied it from the table on the Postmaster's office which at that time had not been revised and corrected The one published this week which we believe to be absolutely correct, is a copy of the one made up and officially on file in the postmaster's office, for the use of which we are indebted to Hugh Brawley, Esq

The precincts errors in the one of last week was in making Tom Bannon's plurality less than a thousand as giving Will Gallup only 387 plurality when he was entitled to 500 more than that and we also giving Capehart instead of Tom Osborne as later Should had the very laudable ambition of beating Hartswell a thousand votes in the county which he failed last week But not been gratified Will Gallup had reason to look for at least an average plurality and Tom Osborne expected to beat the East Smethport fellow but the last week's table knocked all these calculations into a cocked hat We are right glad to be able to straighten them out this week

The Democratic Jubilee

The democratic jubilee of our last Saturday night was of such a character as to make the better class of our democracy feel ashamed A straggling mob of about sixty men and boys carrying four torches that had been taken from the republicans, and supplied with about a dozen roman candles started out from Henry Wilson's store and to the music of the horns and the joyful hoo rahs they marched in gorgeous array up and down Main street It took them two hours and forty six minutes to pass a given point (a Main street saloon) and some of them did not get by till long after midnight Oh it was fine The red fire display was also one of the important features. It did not show up much during the parade but as it was taken cowardly as it rained later in the evening Through earnest solicitations of their friends, we withhold the names of those who had anything to do with it

Our Dead Comrade.

COMRADE CAPT. ROGERS.—Please let the old Rockville and their friends thank everybody for their kindness, in taking part in laying to rest our dead and beloved comrade, Chas Rogers. May they all have kind and loving hands to minister to their wants and care for them in their last illness. Nov 5th, 1884, was a sad day for us who had to rent the first Pocket of the war. He was our first captain and well did he remember it, for he would not have his remains buried in Philadelphia, but before his death direct ed that they should be interred where he raised his men for the regiment that he more than any other single individual made famous. There may be rest in peace, and night for his old comrades. When we think our comrade has gone to his final resting place in old Pennsylvania and that the roll of the old regiment is growing smaller from year to year, and that in a few short years we will all have gone to that bourne from which no comrade returns it is strange that our feelings should become depressed and our reflections assume a serious character? Then again we rejoice that we have boys growing up, who will take our places in the ranks and if need be fight the battles of the country and protect the old flag, when attacked by the cohorts of treason or foreign invaders.

Comrade Ryan of Co. G, comrade Commaire, of Co. I, comrade Landrigan, of Co. I and myself at the request of the deceased comrade's family took charge of the sacral services. Brave sergeant Reay, of Co. I 11th Pa. Cavalry, carried the flag which was draped with crape. It was the wish of the deceased that no display should be made at the funeral services and his wishes were strictly complied with Nearly every citizen of Kane was present, however, and we thank them again for their kind services. No one appreciates such attentions more than a soldier The boys of many of the brave soldiers of McKean county lie bleaching on southern soil, their remains never receiving even a decent burial Out of the bones of many of the patriots the rebels made rope, pans and other trinkets. Beautiful keepsakes these!

But may the great General of all grade our sons in the path of loyalty and the love to country so that they will fight for and protect its flag from the despoiler's hands. May the god of battle bless our flag for under its folds we marched to a victory which struck the shackles from the limbs of four million slaves, made our country a land of freedom in fact, as well as in name and saved it from falling into the hands of rebels.

From Ludlow

FOURTH MONDAY.—Ever since the last town meeting our community as a community has been disturbed and our electors have thought and said many bad words. They cannot assemble any more in brotherly love and harmony, and as the matter, which gave rise to the difference of opinion, still has additional zero and ever we desire an opinion what is an opinion" to settle this question. A written opinion was obtained of one of the admitted legal lights of the Warren county bar, but that does not seem to convince the perpetrators of what the other side call an "outrage" The case is briefly this At our town elections the names of all candidates for every office are upon one ballot. Every ballot should have the name of but one candidate for election but two are elected At our election about one-third of all the ballots polled contained the names of two for that office Because two were to be elected most of the voters thought they ought to ballot for two Not until the count was made was the mistake discovered and a certain man (man fiercely demanded that all such ballots should be "thrown out" The board did so, and Supervisors and every other officer on those tickets with inspectors were counted out The result was that a minority vote prevailed over an overwhelming majority for every town officer No one can question the manifest injustice of this result to the action of the board legal or otherwise In all law is founded in justice, we are anxious to learn if there is any exception to this general rule that applies to

A Mystery Solved.

On last election day Nov 4th many enquiries as to the whereabouts of James McGraw only resulted in mystifying definite for an answer to the question Some thought he was out in the rural districts electioneering for Bannon, while others allowed he was at Eldred in Sartwell's behalf. It seems, however, that none called the cars," as the little notice under the head of "married" will indicate in this issue. Well, Jemima, here's our HP

"The Weeping Willow of the Kinzua."

We copy the following from the Leed low correspondent to the Warren Mail. It evidently refers to Jam Anderson and we would suggest that James should read and ponder it well, then cut it out and paste it on his hat

Now that election is over we would suggest, in the kindest manner possible, to Jimmy, that, after the polls are closed to the hereafter he will not be the judge of election and there will be no stuffing, no reversing and no walking off with ballot boxes, and even his consistent and red hot democracy won't be proof against the brimstone caloric of that torrid zone. The words in thy hourglass, O, Jim' are nearly run out, and there is but a short time for repentance, and, with all thy crookedness we admire thee for the ingenuity and versatility of thy depravity and wish these well—in another country

Post Allegany Celebration.

EDITOR MINER.—The democratic celebration here last night was a grand affair in a democratic point of view. It was the grandest in consequence of any that ever took place here and one that the respectable portion of the community hope will never be repeated It was a celebration peculiarly democratic, as there were more drunken men staggering through its streets than were ever seen before at any one time in any town of twice its size. The democratic horn did as he said he would, give the boys two three-year-olds or three two-year-olds. The ceremony of roasting of the ox, so to speak, was accompanied with free whiskey, in the good old democratic style, to free that two men took a pail full and carried it through the crowd asking the boys to "drink" to Cleveland's health as the next president of the United States. This invitation was freely accepted and the result which followed was terrible to witness. Every republican was compelled to get out of reach of these whiskey-infuriated men, particularly if an intimation was dropped that Blaine was gaining in New York state. One unsuspecting republican boarded for Blaine, but the words were hardly out of his mouth before he was jumped onto by a democratic worker. The republican was proving too much for the democrat when an officer interfered and the parties were separated. Before this was accomplished, however the officer was hit by one of the roughs.

The climax of this carouse was reached in a speech from our defeated candidate for the legislature, who by the way feels exceedingly sore over his castigation He was wonderfully frank in his utterances, and like all newly made converts, talked right out in meeting, what older and more conservative democrats would keep to themselves. He favored the pensioning of southern as well as northern soldiers, and he seemed to think that Jeff Davis No 2 was growing up here in and Pennsylvania. Amid the melodies of the Port Allegany and Coudersport bands and the yelling which was caused by the free use of democratic rum the town was literally painted red Several large lights of glass were broken out of various business houses because of the expenses of dynamite and powder To crush and riot in greed supreme, until from the unbridled consumption of rum which had not most of the active participants and the utter exhaustion of the remainder, the Cleveland jubilee of Port Allegany came to a close May we never live to witness another. JAKE.

An Important Modification

We understand that a slight modification has been made in the plans for putting the affairs of the New York Lake Erie & Western railroad on a satisfactory footing When Mr S King was first asked to become the president of this road he made it a condition of his accepting the position offered him that the finances of the company should first be completely arranged He has now agreed to stand for the presidency with out the fulfillment of that condition. It appears that several important financial houses who are interested in the line were induced to give their support to the scheme of financial reorganization which the London committee were disposed to adopt until Mr King's accession to the presidency was certain, and we may assume that, on this being represented to him, he has consented to be nominated at once The committee have we are informed, prepared their 'ticket' for the election of directors, which will be held next month and have no doubt as to their ability to carry it —London Times.

States and Territories

The United States now comprises thirty-eight states and eleven territories, including Indian territory and the District of Columbia, which have no territorial government, and Alaska. With these two exceptions each territory has a governor and judiciary appointed by the President and legislature subject to congressional supervision. Usually when a territory has a population which entitles it to a representative on congress, it is empowered by congress to adopt a state constitution, and is thereupon admitted to the Union After the District of Columbia organized in 1790 for the seat of government, and Indian territory organized in 1834 the next two oldest territories are New Mexico with its capital at Santa Fe the second oldest city in the United States, and Utah with Salt Lake City as its capital, both organized in 1850 Next was formed Washington territory in 1853 with its capital at Olympia, then Dakota (meaning The Lodge) in 1861, Yankton its capital city In 1863, two territories were organized, Arizona, Prescott for its capital, and Idaho, with its capital at Boise City Montana (Helena its capital city) was organized in 1864 and Wyoming (capital, Cheyenne) four years later The total area of the eleven territories is a million and a half miles.

Great Demand for Oil.

PHILADELPHIA PA Nov 3.—Within the last ten days the wharves at Girard Point Point Breeze and the other places of shipment of oil have been crowded with vessels ready for loading to a greater extent than ever before Oil merchants say that there never before was such a scarcity of oil for delivery and such an amount of oil tonnage in Philadelphia The vessels come mostly from foreign ports and are sent here by the purchasers abroad There is not room for all of them at the wharves and last week seven of the largest were ordered to New York The largest vessel on the seas carrying oil is now here Her capacity is 16 000 barrels In former years there has been a great want of vessels in the port for shipping petroleum The sudden arrival of so many vessels has satisfied this demand and largely increased Philadelphia's oil business. The Standard Oil Company has decided, in view of the sudden change to start up several refineries in Pittsburg which have been idle for five years The warehouses owned by the Girard Point Storage Company have been leased by Lauderberg Thalman & Co., of New York, and the facilities for larding there have been increased The firm acts as agents in this country for large capitalists in Europe the Rothchilds having a one third interest in the firm and five large refineries there being represented Only crude oil is exported in large quantities the foreign tariff on refined oil being almost prohibitory
